I want to express my appreciation and say thank you to Joshua McClure for being a scholar who thought it not robbery to become a general practitioner. Scholars usually remain at the academy, out of the line of fire, and reflect on the problems of the street. I think when we learn more about Pastor McClure, we may discover that He became a scholar seeking answers to the hurts, the doubts, and the uncertainties he encountered in the lives of struggling Christians in the street. I think it was in the street that Reverend McClure learned to be very cautious about using the term “serious Christian.”

This Preacher has taken words and concepts that we often use, assuming, mistakenly, that the listener understands, and has wrapped them around the everyday events of his journey. Scripture passages come alive as he relates his story to concepts like the trinity, creation, the fall, Incarnation, New Creation, deeper life and others. Pastor Joshua McClure exposes himself in this book. The reader will learn that Joshua has a scholar’s mind...and a shepherd’s heart. Thank you, Reverend McClure, for sharing.

"I was impressed by the depth of the theological content covered in the book, Almost Persuaded Now to believe. The book, as I see it, would be a good tool to anyone who has studied in a seminary or Bible College as a refresher, but more so, to someone who has never had the benefit of studying theology."

Rev. Dr. Vincent L. Thompson, Community Baptist Church, Newport, RI
